The Department of Insurance regulates the insurance industry in Missouri and provides consumer protection to the insurance-buying public.

The agency was established in 1869, when 171 insurance companies operated in the state. The insurance industry, as of December 2000, had grown to 1,825 insurance companies licensed in Missouri with 281 domiciled in the state. In addition, the Missouri Department of Insurance has regulatory authority over 10,091 licensed insurance agencies, 83,341 agents and 7,404 brokers, among others.

The insurance industry in Missouri writes in excess of $18 billion in Missouri premiums and pays about $150 million in premium taxes and other fees to the state each year.

There are four divisions within the Department of Insurance: Financial Regulation, Market Regulation, Consumer Affairs and Resource Administration.

The Division of Financial Regulation conducts financial analysis and examinations of insurers domiciled in Missouri to verify their financial condition. The division also ensures that company operations comply with Missouri laws, regulations and accepted insurance accounting practices. Financial examinations of most Missouri-domiciled companies are conducted at least every three years.

The Division of Market Regulation regulates the performance of insurers in the marketplace.

Market conduct examiners review insurers' operations, including marketing, claims handling, policies and rates. For some violations the insurance companies also are required to pay fines to the state school fund and/or restitution to the consumer, either through readjudication of claims or re-evaluation of the premium charged for the policy.

The life and health and property and casualty sections review policy contracts, rules and rate filings. The managed care section oversees policy development, implementation of new legislation and the analysis of statistical data from health maintenance organizations and entities. The statistics section analyzes and publishes industry and market data as well as trends in the overall industry.

The Division of Consumer Affairs assists the general public in resolving complaints, providing information to consumers regarding insurance policies and investigating alleged acts of insurance fraud. In 2000, the division responded to more than 4,559 complaints and 59,194 inquiries, recovering more than $7.4 million for consumers in 2000. The division operates a toll-free consumer hotline at 800-726-7390; the department also offers a toll-free workers' compensation rate hotline at 888-200-1697.

The Division of Resource Administration oversees licensing, budget, management information systems and support services.

The department is funded through fees collected from insurance companies, agents and other licensees rather than state general revenue.

The department's main office is located in Jefferson City with branch offices in Kansas City and St. Louis. The branch offices respond to consumer concerns in those areas. The Kansas City phone number is (816) 889-2381. The St. Louis phone number is (314) 340-6831. Consumers can file a complaint or inquiry electronically through the Internet site, which has a broad array of consumer and industry information available.
